

Whirred PLAY™ Testimonials

"Whirred PLAY encourages the inclusion of all ability students. They learn from both the game and each other in a fun, relaxed environment."

(Hazel Pears - HLTA (Higher level teaching assistant) The Magna Carta School, Staines)

It is possible that the 'Holy Grail' of familial family board games may have been reached in the shape of a game entitled Whirred PLAY, a game that is explained rather neatly in its title. The basic premise of the game is that the English language is littered with homophones – word that sound the same when spoken but which are spelt differently – and out of the context of a sentence each spelling is as valid as the next. Points are awarded for the originality of the spelling, so long as the spelling is a correct one. Simple, effective and inclusive.

(Magazine editor, Berkshire).

A great, innovative game – it's simple, intuitive and different.

(Global Marketing Director, New York).

Whirred PLAY is that very unusual thing in the world of board games – a genuinely new idea. It is fun with having the added benefit of having educational spin-offs for younger players. If you are the kind of person who enjoys word based games then you really have a look at this.

(Group HR Director, RM)

It's educational and fun. It's great to see real innovation in gaming. Like most good ideas it is based on a simple premise and it's great to play something so inclusive.

(Snr. Category and Insight Manager).

What a great find. This game is destined to become a family classic. Great fun and educational, too. The kids love the fact that they can get one over on us adults and we love the fact that they are spending more time playing this game than in front of the TV.

(Stepfather, Merseyside).

Whirred PLAY is fun. It makes you think, it's competitive, and refreshingly anyone of any age can win. This ensures that the whole family can, and more importantly, wants to play together with no-one feeling left out. What a result in our house. Great game, thanks.

(Housewife, Middlesex).

Great fun for adults, but the bonus is the kids enjoy it just as much and are just as likely to win. Highly recommended.

(Father, Middlesex).

This is a fantastic game that will appeal to all ages. We have had hours of fun playing it at home. As a teacher I can also recommend it as an educational resource. The children in my school loved it when they had the opportunity to play it during activity week. If you are looking for something fun and educational then this is the game for you.

(Primary School Teacher, Surrey).

I am a teacher and I have used Whirred PLAY with groups in classes of 8 and 9 year olds. They loved it and gained so much from it, they always pester me to play it more often. Would definitely recommend it – great for parents to use as an aid for homework, too, as it is something the whole family would love. Great for children who are reluctant to do homework as it is fun and they do not always realise they are learning at the same time. A brilliant game.

(Primary School Teacher, Surrey).

This is an ideal game for all ages which makes it great for families. Anyone can win from a child to a great granny. It can be played with a large number of people, so great for parties, too.

(Grandmother, Merseyside).

My whole family really enjoy playing Whirred PLAY. No two games are ever the same. Whatever your age or ability you have as much chance as the next person of winning – not many games can say that. Also I highly recommend it as an engaging educational game and a fantastic resource for schools and teachers. Where else can you find so many homophones in one place?

(Mother, Middlesex)

Whirred PLAY™ Testimonials

We have enjoyed playing Whirred PLAY as a family, including the grandchildren, on several occasions. Thank you for inventing it.
(Grandparents, Berkshire).

Amongst the many wonders of the 2011 Toys Fair there was one interesting piece. It's called Whirred PLAY and it is a clever little board game that deals with homophones and language. It's a little like Cranium-Scrabble only it deals with words and you can have as many players as you want. The game is more international. Keep an eye out for this, it looks pretty good.

(Business Student, Kingston University).

What a fab game for families or a bunch of friends, lots and lots of laughter at the Rules of Play' games day.

(Independent board game shop owner, Cardiff).

What a great family game Whirred PLAY is. Can't say fairer than that.

(Housewife, Middlesex).

Great way to have fun and sneak in some education for the kids. Different versions give lots of potential for schools both for class and group work.

(Former Primary School Headmistress, Essex).

Fun for all ages – anyone can win. What's even better is that no two games are the same. Fantastic graphics as well.

(Graphic designer and Father, Hampshire).

Enjoyable board game for everyone. No two games are ever the same.

(Mother, Middlesex).

I like the fact that easier words can sometimes score more points than more difficult words.

(9 yr old, Oxfordshire).

The game is fun because it teaches you about homophones and spellings. I think the trickiness was just about right.

(9 yr old, Oxfordshire).

Whirred PLAY was well received by my pupils, it was enjoyed by them, with a high level of enthusiasm for wanting to play some more.

(Primary school teacher, Oxfordshire).

Whirred PLAY is very cool and plenty of fun.

(10 yr old, Oxfordshire).

Children were engaged, enthusiastic, motivated and had to think. Whirred PLAY was fun and all inclusive from G&Ts to SENs.

(Primary school teacher, Oxfordshire).

I like Whirred PLAY because everybody can play at the same time.

(11 yr old, Surrey).

I like Whirred PLAY because kids can beat the adults.

(10 yr old, Surrey).

Brilliant game, fun, enjoyable, challenging and interesting.

(Primary school teacher, Surrey).

Whirred PLAY is a great educational game.

(Primary school Headmistress, Oxfordshire).

Got Whirred PLAY at Christmas and really enjoyed it. A great game especially if you have a mixed age group playing – it can just as easily be won by the 8 year old as the English Literature grad.

(Father, Surrey).

Whirred PLAY™ Testimonials

Great game, easy to understand and all can play.

(Accountant and Father, Oxfordshire).

Whirred PLAY is a fantastic game.

(Businessman, Birmingham).